Arrest in Kidston murder

Police offering few details on person arrested ◐ Charges could be laid Friday ◐ Victim described by neighbour at Victoria Gardens apartment as 'normal guy'

ALEX BOUTILIER
@METRONEWS.CA

Police have made an arrest in the killing of Grant William Kidston.

Halifax Regional Police arrested the man just before 10 a.m. on Thursday, after pulling over his vehicle on Highway 111.

Police say no further details can be released pending charges, which are expected to be laid early Friday.

Police spokesman Const. Brian Palmeter did confirm, however, the suspect and Kidston were known to one another.

"We're not going to say much more until a decision on charges is made," said Palmeter.

The arrest is the result of a three-month-long investigation by members of the HRP/RCMP Integrated Crime Unit.

Kidston was found dead in his Dartmouth apartment on May 30, after police received reports of a deceased person on the third floor of the building.

The cause of Kidston's death has not been released. At the time, Palmeter said the cause "may be crucial as far as speaking to possible suspects."

Initially dubbed suspicious, the death was ruled a homicide the following day. A suspect was brought in for questioning that day, but was later released.

Cops still hope to crack cold case

Police still believe there are people out there who know more than they're willing to tell in the murder of Jason MacCullough.

Saturday will mark the 11th anniversary of the killing that saw the 19-year-old victim shot in the back of the head from point-blank range while walking home on Pinecrest Drive in Dartmouth.

MacCullough was using a well-known shortcut when he was shot at 2:30 a.m. on Aug. 28, 1999. Police believe the killing was a random incident, as they don't believe the victim was involved in any type of criminal activity.

"We believe there are people out there that have information that would be critical to this investigation and are not bringing this information to police," said police spokesman Const. Brian Palmeter.

Police claim there were several people in the area at the time of the murder, and according to a release issued on Thursday, they "strongly believe they were witnesses to the crime."

Palmeter said the case has been assigned to the cold case unit, but adds, "it is routinely reviewed and information we do receive is acted on immediately."

MacCullough said "they were still behind the cops" in relation to her son's case and "know they're doing what they can."

She also said the family will keep waiting for new insights into their son's case until the very end.

Transit changes hit this weekend

- Changes, including several new bus routes, come into effect Sunday
- Part of city's five-year plan

ALY THOMSON
HALIFAX@METRONEWS.CA

A spokeswoman for Metro Transit says the changes coming to bus routes and schedules this weekend aren't meant to please everyone — just the majority of users.

"Whenever you're making changes, you're making it for the better to try to be convenient for as many people as possible," Lori Patterson said on Thursday.

"But you always have somebody that it's impacting that may not be happy with it."

A variety of changes take effect on Sunday. New routes include the No. 8 along Halifax's waterfront, No. 22 in the Armdale district and No. 57 on and around Russell Lake Drive in Dartmouth.

This fall, users of No. 3 Manors were left finding other transportation options after the route was eliminated.

The service adjustments come as a part of the five-year strategic operations plan by the municipality.

"This is the first roll out of some of those new services," she said. "It's something we've been working towards for a while."

Family of teen to meet with province

Troubled youth was transferred back to Nova Scotia this week ◐ Teen says he was abused in Ontario ◐ Facility there now under investigation

The grandmother of a local teenager now being treated for behavioural difficulties in Truro says she doesn't expect much from a meeting with the province on Friday.

The woman, who cannot be named to protect the 15-year-old's identity, wants the province's Department of Community Services to take the boy out of residential facilities and into a tailor-made foster care program.

She says without family contact, she doesn't expect any rehabilitative treatment to be successful.

"Work with the child to come back home," she said. "But work with the family. If you don't work with the family, it won't work."

Community Services spokeswoman Vicki Wood could not speak to the specifics of the case, or confirm that communication between the family and the youth has been suspended.

She did say, however, that it is less common to suspend communication with older children in residential care than very young children.

The boy has been in provincial care since 2008, when it was determined he was a threat to himself and the community.

He was sent to Bayfield Homes, a residential facility in Ontario. The facility recommended suspending contact with the family.

FALL RIVER

Crash victim identified

A 39-year-old father from Elmsdale is the victim of Wednesday afternoon's multi-vehicle crash in Fall River between a motorcycle and a car.

Todd Anthony Stoneman was travelling down Windgate Drive on his motorcycle when police say his bike tipped, sending him sliding into the oncoming lane where he collided with a car.

Stone died en route to hospital.

His 10-year-old son was also travelling on the motorcycle and suffered non-life-threatening injuries. At the request of the family, the son's name isn't being released by police.

The 23-year-old driver of the car wasn't injured.

Man gets 2 years for DUI

A man found guilty of impaired driving was sentenced to two years in jail and a 10-year driving prohibition. Floyd Archibald Pelley, 52, of East Preston appeared in Shubenacadie provincial court on Thursday and pleaded guilty to impaired driving, dangerous driving and driving while prohibited.

On Aug. 7, Pelley was stopped by police after travelling north in the southbound lane of Highway 102 near the Milford exit.

Police say the car was swerving on the road shortly after 9 p.m. Pelley, the lone occupant of the vehicle, blew three times over the legal limit of .08 milligrams.

Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff bringing party's tour bus to province ◐ No stops planned for Halifax

Strategizing for the fall session of the House of Commons will be at the top of the agenda at the federal Liberals' caucus meeting in Baddeck next week.

But Kings Hants MP Scott Brison said that items that have dominated the summer news cycle — the axing of the long-form census, the long gun registry, and a perceived silencing of high-profile civil servants — will not be far behind. "We're going to be developing and discussing ideas for the future of Canada," he said, yesterday, adding the party has shifted its focus from attacking the government, instead trying to move forward with the party's vision for the future.

"This is a target-rich environment in terms of materials to attack the Conservatives on," he said. "(They've) managed to offend veterans, the military, the police, and any thinking Canadian this summer."

The caucus meeting will run from Monday to Wednesday in Baddeck.

Thanks Mom Thanks Dad

The start of a new school year is an exciting time for students, parents and teachers.

Learning improves when parents get involved in their child's education. Nova Scotia's teachers thank parents for being involved and encourage them to continue.

Show your child that learning is important. Stress good work habits. Set expectations that encourage your child to grow. Show an interest in what he or she is learning and keep informed about what is happening at school and in class.

Meet your child's teacher. Discuss what is being taught, homework, expectations and discipline. Let the teacher know about situations that may affect your child's learning, such as a medical condition. Consider volunteering in the class or on school committees.

Children succeed when there is a strong partnership between home and school. The teachers of Nova Scotia look forward to working with you this year.

WEST CHEZZETCOOK

Cause of house fire sought

Fire investigators are trying to determine what caused a blaze that destroyed a home in West Chezzetcook early Thursday.

About 45 Halifax regional fire fighters descended upon the house on Highway 207 around 5:30 a.m. when a call came in about a two-storey home up in flames.

"It was fully evolved when we arrived," said divisional fire chief Mike LeRue. "There were ... flames shooting around everywhere."

LeRue said there was one person inside the home when the fire broke out. They escaped unharmed. It took fire fighters about two hours to bring the blaze under control, he added.

Five escape south end house fire

Five people escaped without injury after a fire broke out on Preston Street in south end Halifax early Thursday. Halifax regional fire divisional chief Mike LeRue said the fire began around 3 a.m. on the home's front deck and then spread to a vehicle in the driveway. A cause hasn't been determined, but it's not deemed suspicious.

New citizens sworn in, jobs may be scarce

36 new citizens sworn in at Maritime Museum of the Atlantic

Three-dozen immigrants were sworn in as Canadian citizens Thursday morning in Halifax.

Many, according to Fusion Halifax, will have difficulty finding employment in Nova Scotia.

"A lot of Canadian employers want to see that the person has worked in Canada before and as soon as the person has a different name or experience ... they kind of don't want to go out on a limb and hire that person," said Suzanne Rix, director of immigration and diversity for Fusion Halifax.

Mohammed Algermozi, 22, immigrated to Canada with his family from Yemen in 2006. He echoed Rix's concerns, but said he eventually found his way.

Four years later, Algermozi is in his third year of industrial engineering at Dalhousie University and plans to work in his field in the province, at least for now.

"I've had a couple co-op jobs and I have a guaranteed job, so I'm just going to continue my life like this and probably live somewhere else in Canada," he said.

Watershed to be held on Pollination Project's experimental organic farm Award-winning Hupman Brothers to perform

ALY THOMSON
HALIFAX@METRONEWS.CA

Directors of the first Watershed Music Festival are hoping to unite fist-pumping and head-bobbing with green sustainability.

Jonathan Biro, director of Saturday's festival, is asking people to come enjoy some local talent and get their hands dirty at this first annual event, presented by the Pollination Project.

"We're going to get people planting ... harvesting and learning how you can bring farm-fresh produce closer to home," said Biro, who's going into his third year at the University of King's College in Halifax.

But what's even more unique about the festival is the venue — the Pollination Project's Watershed Farm in Bakers Settlement, he said.

Founded by his father, Peter Biro, and film producer Camelia Frieberg, the settlement is a working, experimental organic farm meant to promote cross-pollination between the arts, ecology, health and society.

Some of the artists on the docket include the East Coast Music Award-winning Hupman Brothers, Haligonians Windom Earle and Three Sheet, and South Shore favourite Darren Arsenault.

Hoping to spread his message to a wide audience, Biro is promoting Watershed as a family-friendly, community-building event that includes a broad range of musical talent, agricultural workshops, local food vendors, craftspeople and tours of the farm.

New folk fest begins on holiday weekend

A new folk festival featuring Willie Nile, Michael Weston King and Ron Hawkin will kick off Sunday at the Carleton Music Bar and Grill.

The first annual Halifax Urban Folk Festival is the brainchild of the bar's owner, Mike Campbell.

He started the festival "as a way to transfer the spirit of renowned folk festivals such as Mariposa ... into an urban setting," a release said.

"I thought it would be cool to put together a festival that celebrated Nova Scotia's most significant cultural export — singer-songwriters," Campbell added.

The festival officially launches over the Labour Day weekend of 2011, but this year offers a preview of things to come, the release said.

Terror arrests come after year-long probe

▶ Investigators remove evidence boxes from a home in London, Ont.

An alleged domestic terror plot that reached from a quiet, west-end Ottawa neighbourhood to Iran, Dubai, Pakistan and the killing fields of Afghanistan has been busted following a year of surveillance, police said Thursday.

Three men, all Canadian citizens, are in custody after an investigation by 100 Mounties with the assistance of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, the Canadian Border Services Agency, the Surete du Quebec and police in Ottawa and London, Ont.

Hiva Mohammad Alizadeh, 30, and Misbahuddin Ahmed, 26, both of Ottawa, and Khurram Syed Sher, 28, of London, Ont., have been charged in the plot.

Their arrests came after police seized more than 50 electronic circuit boards they allege were designed to be remote detonators for bombs, as well as terrorist literature and bomb-related documents.

Ahmed is an X-ray technician at an Ottawa hospital. The Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons web site says a Khurram Syed Sher is a McGill University graduate who is an anatomical pathologist at St. Thomas Elgin General Hospital in St. Thomas, Ont., just south of London.

Alizadeh studied English as an additional language and electrical engineering technology at Red River College in Winnipeg.

Danger: Sex with your boss can backfire

Study finds men and women workers lose respect for male leader But 15% of women admit an affair

METRO NEWS SERVICES

Sylvia Ann Hewlett

Apparently, sex with the boss can still help a woman get ahead. But companies and the individuals involved pay a high price, according to new research.

Some 15 per cent of executive women surveyed by the New York-based Center for Work-Life Policy admit to having an affair with a superior.

And 37 per cent of the women believe such liaisons pay off in the form of promotions and other perks, the study also found.

But the study discovered 61 per cent of men and 70 per cent of women lost their respect for the male leader involved in a workplace dalliance.

As well, 60 per cent of male executives and 65 per cent of female executives suspect the woman involved is receiving salary hikes and plum assignments in exchange for sexual favours, the survey showed.

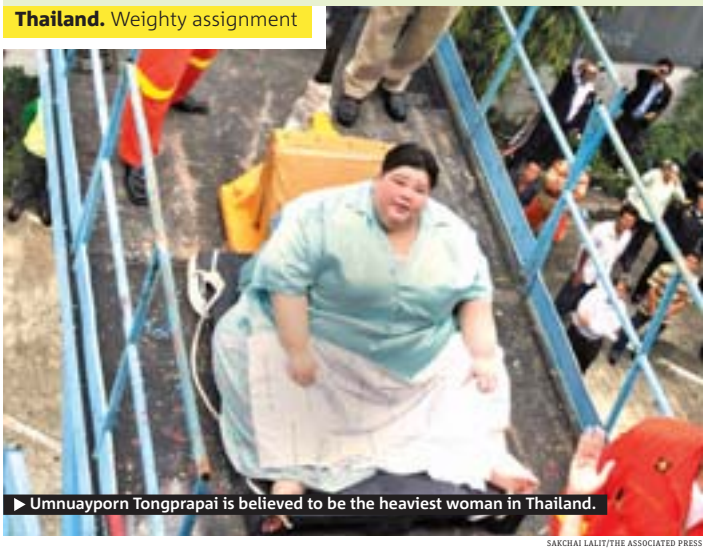

"Hitting on a female colleague is never okay. And up-and-coming executive women need to exercise similar restraint," says Center president Sylvia Ann Hewlett.

"Illicit sexual relations often backfire and wreak serious damage in the workplace," she adds.

The Center. a non-profit think-tank, conducts research and works with employers to develop policies that promote work-life balance.

Hottest year ever? The title will be so cool

But La Nina could just blow it, forecaster warns

Canada is on track to have the hottest year on record by far — if La Nina doesn't blow it.

From January through July, it has been 3.5 degrees warmer than normal, says Environment Canada's David Phillips.

That's considerably warmer than the record set in 1998, when temperatures hovered almost 2.5 degrees higher than normal for the whole year across the country.

"Unless we get into a big deep freeze from September on, this one certainly looks like it will be the warmest of all," Phillips said.

DARREN CALABRESE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Cooling off has been the right thing to do this year.

Models forecast this year's trend will continue, with Central and Eastern Canada breaking records for the warmest September and October.

The 1998 record was set even though a La Nina formed that year.

This year, the same weather phenomenon developed in July as the waters of the central Pacific Ocean cooled.

La Nina usually brings cooler weather to Western Canada.

But Phillips said he believes it won't have a dampening enough effect to keep 2010 out of the record books.

Phillips guarantees we won't have a winter like last year, when it was four degrees warmer than usual.

▶ Solo sailor Laura Dekker will catch up on her schoolwork during her stay in the Canary Islands.

Canary isles, ahoy

Solo sailor aged 14 makes landfall — and plans to stay awhile

A 14-year-old Dutch sailor aiming to become the youngest person to sail solo around the world says she has reached the Canary Islands off northwest Africa.

"Now I'm in the Canary Islands with the first stage of my trip behind me," Laura Dekker wrote on her website.

"It was a great first stage that I can look back on with a good feeling.

"Sleeping, eating, navigating and all the other things on board went well," she wrote.

"I'll have to look at land for a while now, but with the beautiful weather and great view here that will be fine."

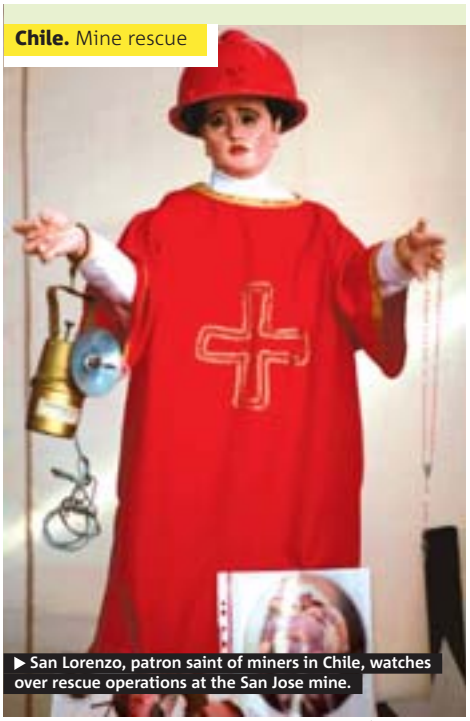

Her venture stirred an intense debate about whether young people should be allowed to sail the world's oceans alone.

In the end, a Dutch court ruled her preparations were adequate and it was up to her parents to decide whether to let her make the attempt.

Treasure trove of life found on ocean floor

50 The scientists say as many as 50 new plant and animal species may have been discovered during the three-week expedition that ended Aug. 14.

Scientists using cutting-edge technology to explore waters off Indonesia have been wowed by incredible images of marine life on the ocean floor.

Their cameras captured plate-sized sea spiders and flower-like sponges that appear to be carnivorous.

The scientists used powerful sonar mapping system and a robotic vehicle to explore 54,000 square kilometres of sea floor off northern Indonesia, at depths ranging from 240 metres to more than 1.6 kilometres.

Verena Tunnicliffe, a professor at the University of Victoria in British Columbia, said: "The sea spiders ... on this mission were huge. Eight-inches (20-centimetres) or more across."

One animal captured on video looks like a flower, covered with glasslike needles, but scientists think it is probably a carnivorous sponge.

NO TAX ON AVATARS

Other people's money

DAVID DESCÔTEAUX

Tired of paying taxes? Grab an axe and go spill some blood ... Virtually.

In an article published two years ago, I told the story of a young Montrealer who earned $3,000 a month selling virtual dresses and T-shirts to players of Second Life. In this online game, millions of people walk avatars (virtual selves) into nightclubs and other imaginary places. They pay real dollars to buy their avatars a sexy haircut, a little cat, a house ... even a penis!

Meanwhile, "gold farmers" in China spend their days slashing monsters with their swords and stealing their gold pieces in World of Warcraft. These gold pieces are then sold over the Internet to other players who need them to progress in the game. Estimated profit: $2,000 US per day.

Two years later, what has changed? "Second Life has slowed down a bit, but Facebook games like FarmVille are exploding!" says Michèle Blanc, senior partner at Analyweb. Last year, 70 million people (your friends?) spent $500 million US to feed non-existent pigs and decorate their virtual farms.

A parallel economy is growing at breakneck pace. From $800 million US two years ago, the annual value of goods traded in virtual worlds on the Internet has now reached $1.5 billion.

A parallel economy is growing at a breakneck pace. From $800 million US two years ago, the annual value of goods traded in virtual worlds on the Internet has now reached $1.5 billion. At the current exchange rate of 200 per U.S. dollar, the World of Warcraft gold coin is faring better than most South American currencies.

In this day and age, a three-headed virtual rabbit can be more productive than most human beings. Edward Castronova, an economist at Indiana University and an expert on virtual worlds, has calculated the value of all goods — magic swords, armour, etc. — created and traded by players in the realm of Norrath, a region of the game EverQuest. GDP per capita: $2,280 US. Average hourly wage: $3.42. These figures put the economy of Norrath above those of China and India.

The United States and Canada do not tax flying castles, or dresses made of pixels. "The U.S. government has been trying for the past five years to seek ways to tax these transactions. But the IRS has no rule of procedure for virtual goods," says Castronova. "It's too weird for them, and doesn't fit into any categories."

Thousands of new web entrepreneurs rejoice. For once, bureaucrats put spokes in their own wheels.

David Descôteaux is a freelance economic journalist and an associate researcher at the Montreal Economic Institute.

▶ A model shows a 3-D glasses and a Blu-ray disc.

Sony Corp. is working on 3-D televisions that don't need special glasses, joining a race with rival Toshiba Corp., but sees cost and technological hurdles to overcome before they can go on sale.

Toshiba said earlier this week it is working on glasses-free 3-D TVs, although no decision had been made on when they will go on sale.

"Seeing 3-D without glasses is more convenient," Sony senior vice-president Yoshihisa Ishida said Thursday at Tokyo headquarters.

"We must take account of pricing before we can think about when to start offering them."

Sony showed its latest 3-D products for the Japanese market, including flat-panel TVs and Blu-ray recorders.

Sony said it plans to be No. 1 in market share in Japan in 3-D TVs and 3-D players and recorders, taking advantage of its position as an electronics maker with a movie studio.

Sony said it will start selling in Japan next month two films and two music videos in 3-D, and planned home software of 3-D theatre releases, including a 3-D Spider-Man opening in 2012.

Chatter heats up over Apple's next big move

iPod Touch with camera, iTV with App Store, cloud-based iTunes service just some predictions

Analysts are confident that Apple Inc. is set to introduce a fourth-generation iPod Touch with dual FaceTime cameras, although speculation about an iTV remains strong.

What is certain is that Steve Jobs and his team have been dropping invitations into tech media inboxes to a show-and-tell session in San Francisco on Sept. 1 — and the invitation features the Apple icon embedded in an acoustic guitar.

Guitar means music, and music means iPod will be the focus, analysts say.

"I expect a new iPhone 4-calibre iPod Touch (retina display, dual FaceTime-ready cameras), new iTunes TV show rentals, and a new iOS-based Apple TV," said Apple watcher John Gruber on Daring Fireball. "The wildcard is whether there's going to be an App Store for the Apple TV."

DISH NETWORK L.L.C./THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ An iPad uses Dish Network's Remote Access app.

Bloomberg News, quoting three sources, reports that Apple is in "advanced talks" with News Corp. about offering Fox TV show rentals for 99 cents each.

Tech blogger Macrumour.com published photos from an iPhone parts supplier of what are claimed to be the front LCB and bezel of the upcoming fourth-generation iPod Touch that would leave room for a front-facing FaceTime camera.

AppleInsider and Macrumour both contend that the new iPod will use email addresses instead of phone numbers to "dial" FaceTime calls.

The prime minister says a $130-million settlement with AbitibiBowater over Newfoundland and Labrador's expropriation of some of its assets was the best the federal government could get.

But Stephen Harper says Ottawa will create a mechanism to reclaim money lost through international trade agreements should similar provincial actions occur in the future.

Premier Danny Williams says Newfoundland and Labrador won't reimburse the amount needed to settle claims that his government illegally seized some of the paper giant's assets. The bankrupt company filed a $500-million claim under the North American Free Trade Agreement after the provincial government expropriated its assets.

▶ Geoff Regan

5 MINUTES WITH: GEOFF REGAN

Halifax West MP Geoff Regan is currently in Quebec, riding along with Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff on Ignatieff's countrywide bus tour. Regan will also take the bus to Baddeck next week when the Liberals will hold their regional and national caucus meeting. Metro caught up with Regan between stops in Montreal.

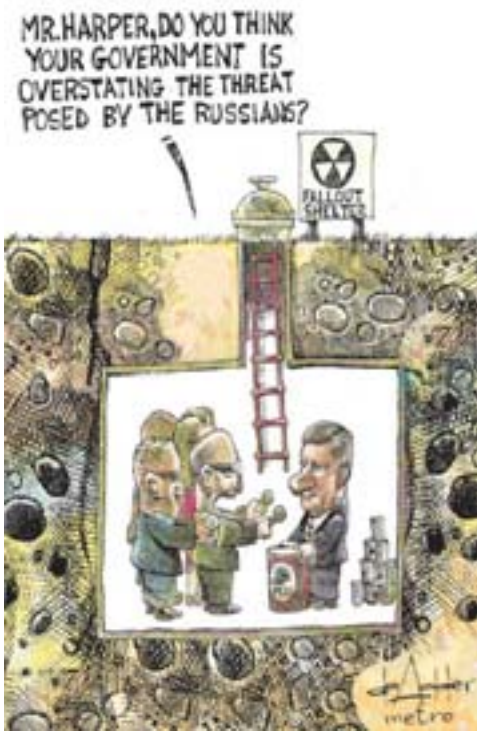

What's going to be on the agenda at the caucus meeting?
This is a chance, when you have MPs and senators from all across the country, gathering together to basically report what they've been hearing over the course of the summer and to prepare our strategy for the fall. A large part is hearing what people bring forward in terms of priorities that they heard in their own riding. But I think there are a few things that are fairly obvious. I would include Mr. Harper's dumb decision to scrap the long-form census ... probably the state of the long-gun registry and why the Conservatives are hiding the RCMP report on the long-gun registry. They need to ensure that the economy continues to recover and that municipalities are not left on the hook when stimulus and infrastructure funding (expires) next March.

It's been a fairly busy summer for news, at least by summer standards. Is that going to carry forward into the fall?
I think it will be a busy fall ... I think there are many issues that Mr. Ignatieff has heard across the country, that our MPs have heard from people that they're concerned about, that we'll certainly raise when the fall arrives ... There's a lot of issues across the country for us to be discussing this fall.

What do you think the main issues Nova Scotia will be facing this fall?
I'd be wiser to leave that to provincial politicians ... (but) I'm really glad to have our colleagues from across the country coming to our region because they get to hear from local people and get a sense that reinforces what we tell them about what's happening economically for us, what's happening in rural communities that are impacted by the downturn in, for instance, forestry ... I think its valuable for us when our colleagues from across the country come to our province and our part of the country and get a better understanding of what our priorities are here. ● ALEX BOUTILIER

Re: 'White buyer' need only apply (Aug. 25. See metronews.ca for story)

CALGARY. Can anyone really define "white" when it's combined with our race? I am really offended by the continuous reference to "white" when my skin isn't really white. What does the term "white" really tell us about a person. My brother was born in Germany, my mother was born in Quebec, and I'm from St. Stephen, N.B.

I am outraged and ask that this definition of "white" be stricken from the dictionary as all my ancestors, friends, family and colleagues are all Canadian. ALLAN P. JOBSON

We asked: Coffee or tea?
TORONTO. Definitely tea! Most varieties have one-third of the caffeine, and some even help me lose weight.

I started drinking more tea to help with digestive issues and continue to have three to five cups every day. MARY-ELLEN TESSIER

EDMONTON. @andraealynne: Tea! Because there's more variety, less processing and often less caffeine.

HALIFAX. Definitely coffee. Sure, tea comes in many different flavours, but when you walk into a room with coffee, the room begins to smell better. ELIZA MILLER

Metro Minute with Scott Saunders

A church organ, antique doors, church pews and other objects typically found in a cathedral will be the subject of an art exhibition beginning Saturday at Saint Mary's University Art Gallery.

Local artist Scott Saunders used artifacts salvaged from Halifax's former Free Mason's Hall to create Grand Lodge, an architectural "ruined environment" that is sectioned into interconnecting rooms.

Saunders, a 2008 graduate of Nova Scotia College of Art and Design, will call Grand Lodge his first solo exhibition in a public gallery. Grand Lodge runs from Aug. 28 through Oct. 3, and will have a public reception Sept. 10 at 8 p.m. ● METRO HALIFAX

- With 200 roles under his belt character actor Danny Trejo get his first staring gig
- Director Robert Rodriguez envisioned this role for Trejo when he was working on the movie Desperado and turned it into a fake trailer for Grindhouse release

After 14 years Machete makes the cut

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

Danny Trejo feels like he's been preparing to play the title character in Machete for 14 years — about as long as he's been working with writer/director Robert Rodriguez.

"Robert's been training me for this movie since we did Desperado, says Trejo, who's appeared in eight of Rodriguez's films. "He said, 'Hey, you're perfect for this character. I want to do this movie called Machete. And that was 14 years ago. And so, you know, 14 years and 780,000 phone calls later — 'When are we doing Machete?' — it was just like stepping into the guy."

And from his first role with Rodriguez — as the knife-throwing assassin Navajas in Desperado — Trejo has noticed a common theme in their collaboration: "Basically in each movie, if you'll notice, I have some sharp object," he says with a laugh.

A veteran character actor who's appeared on screen close to 200 times, Trejo gets to finally play the lead in Machete, something he was excited about.

"As far as being the lead, the only difference is I got to kiss Jessica Alba," he jokes. "It's a little different because usually you show up, you do your stuff and you leave. But now you're on the set every day. You're on the set every day and you have to realize that this is your movie. It's not that your attitude is different or your performance is different. It's that you just help any way you can."

While the idea for Machete came about years ago, the character first appeared on screen as something of a gag. Rodriguez filmed a trailer for the non-existent film as part of his Grindhouse project with Quentin Tarantino, sandwiched between Rodriguez's Planet Terror and Tarantino's Death Proof. For Trejo, filming the movie years after making the trailer was more than a little disorienting.

And with Machete already being in the public consciousness — the trailer was one of the most popular parts of Grindhouse — the actor and filmmaker found they had a new set of expectations to worry about.

"I sent Robert a text from England, where some guys had tattooed that picture of Machete on their backs," Trejo remembers. "I thought, 'Wow, I hope they like the movie.'"

Arizona law adds a real life element

Writer and director Robert Rodriguez admits he couldn't have asked for better timing for Machete, as it comes just months after Arizona passed its controversial immigration law.

"When you make an exploitation film you always want to have a real issue," he says. "That's how they were always done. Exploitation films were famous for taking an issue and exploiting it because they could move much faster than a studio. Any hot topic, they could run out and make a movie and make a buck on it."

While immigration has always been a hot-button topic in Arizona the current events have raised the temperature on the situation.

"Just recently this just became more relevant and just gave this movie another layer of entertainment," he says. "It's done in a huge sense of fun. It's supposed to make you feel, 'Wow, some of this is really not far off the mark.' Even though I tried to make it as much made up as possible, you couldn't escape that reality is stranger than fiction."

Reunited

Kevin Spacey and Sam Mendes are reuniting for a trans-Atlantic production of Richard III, producers announced Thursday. Spacey will play the villainous English king in a production of Shakespeare's play directed by Mendes. The two men last worked together on the 1999 film American Beauty, which won five Academy Awards.

Interesting experiment

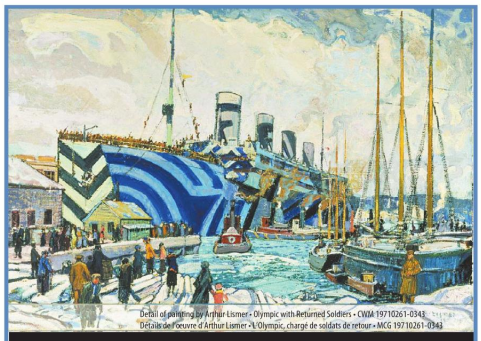

The Last Exorcism
Genre: Horror/Thriller
Director: Daniel Stamm
Stars: Patrick Fabian, Ashley Bell, Iris Bahr

Producer Eli Roth (Hostel 1 &2, Cabin Fever) has claimed that his latest cinematic venture The Last Exorcism was meant to be anything but a rip-off of William Friedkin's immortal 1973 shocker The Exorcist. But If he thinks his film doesn't have its roots firmly ensconced in that classic, he's out to lunch; for just as in The Exorcist. we have a central "holy man" figure having a crisis of faith who is called into action when a little girl is seemingly possessed by some class of demon. And yes, substances and swear words do indeed spill out of mouths in both pictures.

What makes The Last Exorcism different is the framing conceit, a pseudo-documentary, first person camera approach that is meant to immerse the audience into the action and further blur the lines between fact and fiction. It's an interesting experiment, applying a post — Blair Witch sheen to a familiar and oft abused genre trope and it almost works.

The problem at the core of The Last Exorcism lies in that first person point-of-view; the film has such strong performances, austere cinematography, rich music and the story is so fanciful that the intentional sloppiness of the camerawork ultimately distracts rather than engages.

Takers
Genre: Action
Director: John Luessenhop
Stars: Chris Brown, Matt Dillon, T.I., Paul Walker
●½

If you've seen any heist movie before, then you've already seen Takers. The script that somehow required four writers follows every possible genre cliche and then adds some tired cop drama with Matt Dillon for good measure. Casting music stars like T.I. and Chris Brown as well-dressed thieves should bring in some extra business even if the lame presences of Paul Walker and Hayden Christensen cancels out any ancillary cool. Admittedly, director John Luessenhop has some impressive action saved for the climax, but it's just not enough to make up for the irritating performances and terrible screenplay (favorite/worst line: "We're takers, man. That's what we do. We take.") ● PHIL BROWN

Flipped
Genre: Comedy
Director: Rob Reiner
Stars: Madeline Carroll, Rebecca De Mornay, Callan McAuliffe, Aidan Quinn
●●½

Flipped — Rob Reiner's latest has been billed as a return to form for the director and a companion piece to his Stand By Me. Like that film, Flipped is a coming-of-age ode to youth cloaked in mid-century Americana (the early 1960s). It's nostalgic for nostalgia. There's charm here and some honest observations of adolescence. But there's also a wilful, cloying datedness to the movie — overly stuffed with period detail like an Archie comic strip. It tracks a boy (Callan McAuliffe) and a girl (Madeline Carroll) from 7-years-old to 13, and all the fluctuating emotions in between.

The strength of Flipped is in its trueness to humdrum adolescence. It's filled not with extravagant dramas, but instead portrays how seemingly minor happenings take on grand meaning: the tragic tearing down of the cherished sycamore, the terrifying formality of a sit-down dinner, the frightening awkwardness of nearly everything.

But it lacks both the darkness and comedy of Stand By Me and its device of flipping every scene to show both kids' perspective drags the film. With Aidan Quinn and Anthony Edwards as the fathers, and John Mahoney as a grandfather.

DILLON'S LACK OF STAR POWER SURPRISING

He is an Oscar nominee, a multiple Independent Spirit Award winner and the star of over forty movies. He can leap frog comfortably from comedy to drama. In this weekend's Takers he plays a cop hot on the trail of some bank robbers. Next he'll be seen yukking it up in Rio Sex Comedy. He can do it all, and on top of that he has at least one IMDB message board titled "Hottest Man Alive," so why is Matt Dillon the forgotten movie star? With credits like his he should be on the a-list, hobnobbing with the Toms — Hanks and Cruise — and Will Smith and yet his brother Kevin, who plays a wannabe celebrity on Entourage, probably has a higher Q score. Here's a look back at why Matt Dillon should be on Hollywood's hot list.

Troubled Youth

Dillon first got noticed playing troubled teens in Over the Edge, My Bodyguard, Little Darlings and Liar's Moon but it was the screen adaptations of three S.E. Hinton novels that made him a star. Tex, The Outsiders (where he shared the screen with Tom Cruise, Rob Lowe and Patrick Swayze) and Rumble Fish made him a teen idol, but also earned him some serious fans as well. Roger Ebert wrote that Dillon has "the kind of clarity, the uncluttered relationship with the camera that you see in only a handful of actors."

He's Really Blossomed

He was typecast as a brooding teen early on but breakout roles in several comedies proved he could more than just a gloomy Gus. In There's Something About Mary he used one of the most all time politically incorrect (but hilarious) pick-up lines to woo Cameron Diaz. Even better is Randy, his character in One Night at McCool's. When nice guy Randy's one-night stand lets it slip that her boyfriend is a killer who might come after them, he doesn't run but in a beautiful bit of understatement says, "It's just the sex and the violence all in one night is a little much."

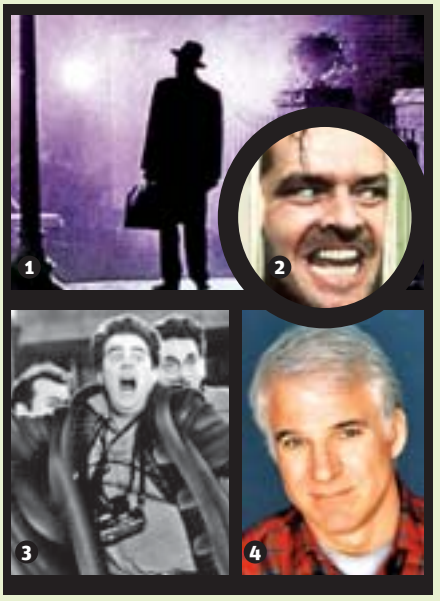

Wild Things

On the dramatic side he is an Oscar nominee for his work as the racist cop in Crash, an award winner for his realistic portrayal of a drug addict in Drugstore Cowboy and he steamed up the screen in the campy Wild Things. The guy can do it. Why isn't he a bigger star?

▶ Matt Dillon has done a wide variety of films in his long career in hollywood.

Entertainment in pictures

The Last Exorcism tells the story of a teenage girl living on a remote Louisiana farm who may — or may not — be possessed by some sort of demon. Here are four movies about possession — demonic and otherwise — that'll take hold of you:

1 The Exorcist (1973): The imagery is iconic: the spinning head and the projectile pea soup and the rumbling bed.

2 The Shining (1980): Stanley Kubrick was a master at freaking you out with camera angles, lighting and pacing.

3 Ghostbusters (1984): Director Ivan Reitman takes all the traditional demonic-possession imagery and uses it to amuse us.

4 All of Me (1984): Steve Martin makes you believe the soul of Lily Tomlin's character, a dead millionaire, has entered his body.

Dallas hits the home stretch

Singer-songwriter needs a break after year of touring

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

▶ Dallas Green, who performs under the name City and Colour, plans to start work a new album in January.

Dallas Green promises that sometime next year he will record another City and Colour album. For now though he's on vacation.

"I've got enough songs for the record," he says on the phone from his Toronto home, "But if I recorded them now I'd have a nervous breakdown. I need some time to myself."

The singer-songwriter, who made it big as the guitarist and vocalist in Alexisonfire and as a dreamy-voiced solo artist, has been on the go almost non stop for the last year. When he wasn't touring with Alexisonfire he'd play City and Colour shows; August was the first month he had off.

All that touring hasn't allowed him to write songs as quickly as he'd like. Green says he needs to spend time crafting a tune — he can't just churn them out.

"I don't understand the people who say they write a song every day," he says. "I never do that. I don't even think it's a good idea to write a song every day — I'd end up writing a bunch of s—."

While he has music for a new disc, he's waiting until January to enter the studio. He says he may write a few new songs between now and then, but he's adamant about not overloading the record with needless tracks.

"I don't want to hear a record that has 15 songs on it," he says. "That's asking too much for the listener, especially now when attention spans are so short."

BEAUTIFUL DAY FOR U2

Sound Check

ALAN CROSS
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

After weeks of punishing heat, choking smoke from wildfires and withering crops, the Russian drought of 2010 ended Wednesday night.

That's the good news. The bad news is that it ended with a monsoon-level rainstorm just as U2 started their first-ever show in Moscow. With Beautiful Day, naturally.

That U2 was in Russia in the first place was a miracle. While Western bands playing here is nothing new — if memory serves, The Dirt Band was the first back in about 1977 — a production the size of the 360 Tour required intense negotiations all the way up to the diplomatic level.

Hey, you try and get 200 trucks worth of gear into this country, not to mention all the necessary visas and work permits. Suffice to say there were lots of older men in shiny suits in the VIP boxes. One of them was Mikhail Gorbachev, too.

Then there's the matter of U2's position on things like universal human rights, political freedoms, freedom of expression and help for AIDS patients — all touchy subjects for their Russian hosts. How would all that go over?

At first, things seemed fine. Before the show, Bono flew to Sochi for tea with President Medvedev. Russian media reported they talked about all those things near and dear to Bono's heart. Even then I was surprised to see booths for Amnesty International, Greenpeace and One outside the stadium.

Bold stuff, considering that the police and military presence at the show was large enough to repatriate a breakaway Soviet republic in an afternoon.

Alas, the police soon moved in and shut down all the booths despite previous assurances that they would be undisturbed. "Unlawful pickets," they said. Two people were apparently arrested. Bono didn't say anything about this from the stage, although he did stick to his regular political and human rights messages without being censored.

The show itself was a two-hour hit fest and if the rain bothered the crowd, they didn't show it. I did feel a bit sad for the woman next to me wearing the $900 suede Prada pumps. That'll learn her.

So where's your Emmy?

Jon Stewart once joked that he would use his Emmy statuette to prop up the sinking foundation of his house.

Most Emmy winners, though, tend to keep their trophies in a special place indoors.

As nominees gear up for Sunday's 62nd annual ceremony, a look at where past winners keep their coveted hardware.

Helen Mirren
A four-time winner (Prime Suspect in 1995 and 2006; The Passion of Ayn Rand in 1999 and Elizabeth I in 2005): "I've got one in England and I've got one here (in the United States), and I guess ... I don't know where it is.
"The one that I have here is, actually, in my office in New York. But the one in England — I think it's in my living room. I can't remember."

Jennifer Aniston
She won in 2002 for Friends: She had kept that Emmy and another award on a shelf in her office. "I thought, 'How do I make good use of them?' So, they're bookends."

Bette Midler
Her Emmys include a 1992 trophy for outstanding individual performance on the penultimate airing of The Tonight Show starring Johnny Carson: "My three Emmys are in the city, in New York, in my home. I don't display them. I just have them in a cupboard somewhere. I'm very proud of them. But the thing that I'm most proud of is my Johnny Carson. I have a photograph of me and Johnny Carson, the last night. And that's the only thing I display."

Wayne Brady
He won an Emmy in 2003 for Whose Line Is It Anyway?: "I keep it downstairs in my library. And I keep it there because I visit my books all the time, because I'm an avid reader. ... I know that some people will give you the modest, 'I use it as a doorstop.' No, I earned that!"

Holland Taylor
She won in 1999 as outstanding supporting actress on The Practice: "Well, at one time, I, with great arrogance, actually did use it as a doorstop. And somebody said, 'Holland, that's disgusting.' And I suddenly saw that it was. ... So, it now is on a little shelf with family pictures in my bedroom."

Emmy show really wants your attention

It's time to renegotiate the broadcast rights Ratings will be crucial Broadcast networks or cable?

When the Emmy Awards air Sunday, more is at stake than whether 30 Rock wins its fourth consecutive best-series trophy, Mad Men its third or Glee its first.

A crucial tally will be the ratings — ammunition for either the big four networks or the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences as the two sides negotiate a new contract for the telecast.

The current agreement, reached in 2002 and expiring this year, created an annual network rotation that brought the ceremony to ABC, CBS, Fox and NBC, and gave the TV academy a huge boost in its license fees.

Now the Emmy show has a chance to prove that it's riding a wave that has lifted other awards broadcasts this year, with viewership up for shows including the Oscars, the Golden Globes and the Grammys.

But what Emmy organizers also might covet is a counteroffer. Eight years ago, cable's HBO made a splash by bidding to wrest away the ceremony with a $10 million annual license fee when the networks were offering $3.3 million.

"Nothing can help your negotiation more than if you have another offer on the table," said writer-producer Bryce Zabel, who was academy chairman and CEO at the time.

"We had a strong argument that the license fee should go up, but it made it easier to achieve with another offer."

▶ Jimmy Fallon, who hosts the Emmys on Sunday, says the awards show belongs on the broadcast networks.

Networks ultimately agreed to an eight-year deal with license fees of $4.5 million annually for the first four years and $7.5 million per year for the next four.

The academy and the networks declined comment on current negotiations.

But broadcast executives were surprised at the academy's proposal, given ceremony ratings in recent years, according to two people with knowledge of the talks. The individuals, who lacked authority to comment publicly and spoke on condition of anonymity, said the academy was seeking to keep fees in the $7.5 million range.

So far, there has been no overt interest shown in the Emmys by HBO or major basic cable networks, such as Turner's TNT or TBS.

Ne-Yo ordered to pay damages

- Promoter Kenyohn Clark sues
- R&B singer and booking agent to pay $156,000 for blotched concert

A Maryland judge has ordered R&B singer Ne-Yo and his booking agent to pay more than $156,000 in damages because the performer failed to appear at a 2008 New Year's Eve concert in Washington state.

Anne Arundel County Circuit Judge Philip Caroom ordered the payment Tuesday after a four-day trial in late July and early August.

Promoter Kenyohn Clark sued Ne-Yo, whose real name is Shaffer Smith, and promoter Mike Esterman, who is based in Maryland. The judge ruled in favour of Clark, who claimed that Esterman misled him and failed to return a $95,000 deposit.

Court documents show Ne-Yo testified at trial that he knew in his "heart of hearts" that the deposit should have been returned.

Jason Brino, Clark's attorney, says his client was "basically public enemy No. 1" after the botched concert and abandoned the promotion business to take a job as a military contractor. Attorneys for Ne-Yo and Esterman did not respond to messages seeking comment.

Letterman welcomes Walters back to View

David Letterman will welcome Barbara Walters back to The View when he visits the ABC daytime talk show next month.

ABC said Wednesday that Letterman, host of CBS' Late Show, will make his first guest appearance on The View on Sept. 7.

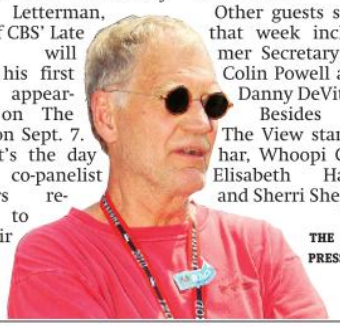

That's the day that co-panelist Walters returns to the air after taking the summer off to recover from open-heart surgery.

The show also marks the start of the 14th season of The View.

Other guests scheduled that week include former Secretary of State Colin Powell and actor Danny DeVito.

Besides Walters, The View stars Joy Behar, Whoopi Goldberg, Elisabeth Hasselbeck and Sherri Shepherd.

Liquor is quicker for thrilling grill

What's Iron Chef Masaharu Morimoto's barbecue secret ingredient? A sake-spiked marinade, of course Boozy abounds in marinade options

Like many other chefs looking to add a little thrill to the grill, Iron Chef Masaharu Morimoto heads to the liquor cabinet. Because rum, tequila and other liquors all do a fine job of getting meat ready to face the fire.

As Elizabeth Karmel, known for her grill skills, puts it: Never marinate your food in something you wouldn't drink.

"I cook a lot with booze. It makes everything taste better and really gives food a fabulous depth of flavour," said Karmel, executive chef of Hill Country Barbecue Market and the soon-to-open Hill Country Chicken, both in New York City. "Food is so much about fun and who wouldn't want a tequila sunrise marinated chicken, right? And so many of the flavours in a tequila sunrise cocktail are the same flavours that we would use in, for example, a marinade."

Morimoto, who appears on the Food Network's Iron Chef America (he also was a star of the original Japanese Iron Chef show), demonstrated his techniques recently at his new restaurant on the Napa riverfront.

He sprinkled sake over pork loin, stabbing the pearly pink meat with chopsticks and then immersing it in a marinade including mirin, a type of rice cooking wine, and sake.

And don't worry, the alcohol cooks away in the heat. This also means that when you're done you can pair the dish with whatever you like, including wine.

Michael Paley, chef of Proof on Main in Louisville, Ky., takes a locavore approach to liquor. He brines pork loin overnight in a bourbon-based brine.

Being in Louisville, "we're fortunate to be surrounded by some of the best bourbon producers in the world," he said.

You don't want to use top-shelf booze for the marinade, of course. Save that for what you pour for yourself.

Matchings

So how do you match liquor with meat? Karmel usually uses lighter alcohols and citrus flavours with white meats and more robust alcohols and flavours with darker meats.

- "But that said, one of my favourite marinades is a Jack Daniels and coke marinade that I use on a pork chop," she said.
- Other flavours she likes are vodka-based marinades for fish, pork, beef or even grilled fruit, and rum-based soaks for grilled fruits, summer veggies, shellfish, tuna, chicken or pork.

Grilled Shrimp With Watermelon

Preparation:

1 Glaze: In a 2 to 3 l (2 to 3 qt) saucepan, heat oil over medium-high heat. Sauté garlic, ginger and lemon grass for a few minutes. Reduce heat to low and stir in vermouth, soy sauce, watermelon and sugar.

Ingredients :

- 30 ml (2 tbsp) olive oil
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) minced fresh ginger or 5 ml (1 tsp) ground ginger
- 30 ml (2 tbsp) minced fresh lemon grass or 5 ml (1 tsp) dry shredded
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) extra-dry vermouth
- 10 ml (2 tsp) soy sauce, or to taste
- 250 ml (1 cup) watermelon purée
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) sugar
- 1 kg (2 lb) peeled deveined medium shrimp, skewered

2 Divide mixture in two, setting aside half for serving as glaze/drizzle. Note: Do not mix liquid from the two halves to avoid contaminating the glaze/drizzle.

3 Over medium-high heat, grill skewered shrimp, basting occasionally until shrimp are cooked and opaque, about 5 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Line combo finds early chemistry for Herd

RYAN TAPLIN/METRO HALIFAX

▶ Darcy Ashley skates down the ice at Halifax Mooseheads training camp last week.

MATTHEW WUEST
@METRONEWS.CA

It might be early to be talking about Halifax Mooseheads line combinations, but the pre-season play of one trio has made a strong first impression.

Third-year left-winger Gabriel Desjardins has lined up with second-year centre Brent Andrews and rookie right-winger Darcy Ashley since the first intrasquad game of training camp and the unit has developed early chemistry.

"Desjardins creates a lot of space with his speed, Brent's got great size and great strength on the puck, and it's given me room to wheel around with the puck and set up plays," said Ashley, a former major midget linemate of Andrews during their days in Cornwall, P.E.I.

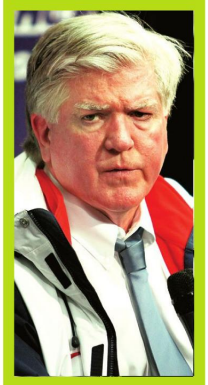

"We're all contributing and that's why the line's been creating offence."

Desjardins, in 2008, and Andrews, in 2009, were the Mooseheads' top picks in their respective draft years, making them franchise cornerstones.

Ashley, 17, was a junior A scoring star last season who turned down a scholarship offer from the University of Maine to join the Mooseheads after being drafted 37th overall in June.

The Mooseheads are back in pre-season action on Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Forum against the Cape Breton Screaming Eagles.

Pelham Canadians off to winning start

Moosehead Dry also victorious on opening day of championships

The Halifax Pelham Molson Canadians started the Canadian senior baseball championships on a winning note Thursday.

The Canadians posted a 10-6 victory over the Fredericton (N.B.) Royals in a morning game that was split up by a lengthy rain delay.

Adam Lucas led the way for the Canadians, with a home run and two RBIs.

Barrett Bellefontaine earned the win on the mound, delivering six strikeouts over six innings of work.

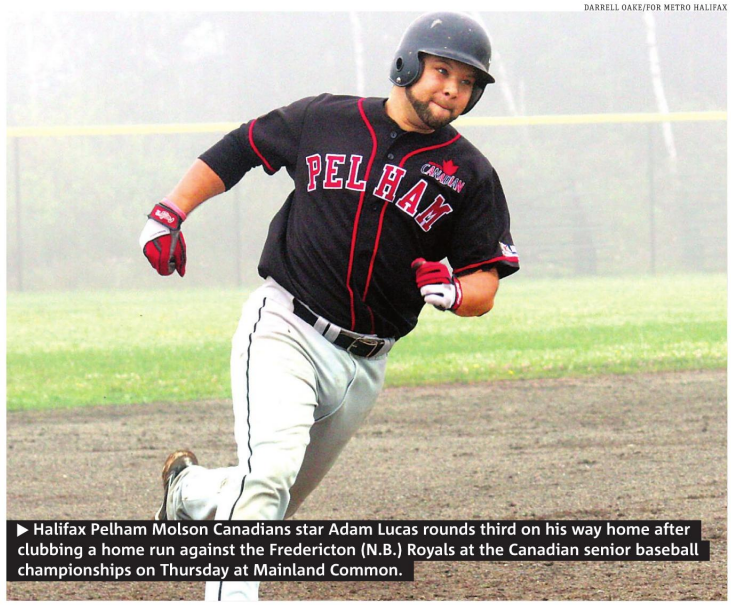

In the late game, it was host and three-time national champion Dartmouth Moosehead Dry getting off to a strong start by defeating Windsor, Ont., 4-2 at Beazley Field.

Left-hander and team ace Jason Bailey went the distance for Dartmouth, allowing just five hits and striking out five.

Schedule

- DARTMOUTH (at Beazley Field): vs. Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., Friday, noon; vs. Brandon, Man., Friday, 7 p.m.; vs. St. John's, N.L., Saturday, noon.
- HALIFAX (at Mainland Common): vs. Red Deer, Alta., Friday, 4 p.m.; vs. Burnaby, B.C., Saturday, 9 a.m.; vs. Ilderton, Ont., Saturday, 2:45 p.m.
- PLAYOFFS (at Beazley): Semifinals, Sunday, 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.; final, Sunday, 7 p.m.

In search of national glory

Huskies are not content with just winning the AUS title Club opens training camp Saturday

MATTHEW WUEST
@METRONEWS.CA

The Saint Mary's Huskies might have three straight Atlantic University Sport football titles, but they're far from satisfied on the national scale.

The Huskies, who open training camp Saturday, have been ousted in the national semifinals each of the past two years by the Western Ontario Mustangs and Calgary Dinos.

"We really worked hard this off-season to try to raise our game and match the top teams in the country," said Huskies head coach Steve Sumarah. "Sometimes you need those (losses) to give you a true indication of where you actually stand."

The Huskies return starting quarterback Jack Creighton and the all-star running back tandem of Devon Jones and Craig Leger. All-star kicker Justin Palardy and defensive back Devon Hicks are the club's biggest losses.

But the Huskies are thrilled with their recruiting class, especially on the defensive side.

Healthy all-Canadian Dan Schutte returns on the defensive line, which will also receive a boost from Brian Ridgeway, a Montreal Alouettes draft choice who transferred from the Simon Fraser Clan.

"We return enough pieces of the puzzle that — mixed with the new guys — we're kind of excited where this is going to go," Sumarah said.

"It will definitely be interesting."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Huskies facts

- The Huskies reeled off seven straight wins after a season-opening loss in 2009 to finish 7-1.
- The Huskies had the nation's third best defence (14.9 points allowed per game), seventh best rushing offence (192.8 yards) and 11th best passing offence (246 yards).

Opener coming soon

The Saint Mary's Huskies open training camp Saturday at Huskies Stadium. They will spend the next two weeks preparing for their Atlantic University Sport season opener Saturday, Sept. 11, against the Acadia Axemen in Wolfville, live on EastLink television.

Tiger shows his old stripes

In his first tournament since his divorce, Tiger Woods finally looked like the No. 1 player in the world Thursday at the Barclays when he opened with a 6-under 65, his lowest score of the year, to share the lead with Vaughn Taylor.

It was Woods' first time leading after any round on the PGA Tour since the Tour Championship last September.

"It's exciting to hit the ball flush again," Woods said. "It's something I've been missing all year."

73 Calgary's Stephen Ames shot a first-round 73, while Graham DeLaet of Weyburn, Sask., finished the day with a 74.

He didn't miss much at Ridgewood Country Club. Woods hit all but one fairway and putted for birdie on all but two holes.

And while he hit his driver only twice, they were two of his best shots of the day — including on the 291-yard fifth hole, where his drive landed pin-high and settled 15 feet away.

MEL EVANS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Tiger Woods watches his shot Thursday on the eighth hole.

Was it just a coincidence that his game showed up so soon after his marriage was dissolved?

"I can't really say that's the case," he said. "As far as golf, it was nice to put it together."

Woods and Taylor had a one-shot lead over Australian Adam Scott, Brian Gay and Ryan Palmer.

Phil Mickelson made only one birdie for a 72.

Halifax's Hart hopes he has the right mix

Question becomes whether coach Stephen Hart will be able to use talent for exhibition games Hart must negotiate with his players' clubs

Team Canada

More about the team:

- Mixed The Canadian roster ranges in experience from captain Paul Stalteri, whose 81 caps are one away from tying Randy Samuel's national record, to midfielder Gianluca Zavarise, who has spent all of six minutes on the pitch for the senior team.
- Experience Hart has other experience in goalkeeper Lars Hirschfeld, defender-forward Kevin McKenna, midfielders Atiba Hutchinson, Patrice Bernier and Josh Simpson, and forwards Rob Friend and Iain Hume.

Canadian soccer coach Stephen Hart has announced a strong roster for upcoming exhibition games against Peru and Honduras.

Just how much he is able to use that talent Sept. 4 against 39th-ranked Peru in Toronto and Sept. 7 against No. 46 Honduras in Montreal will depend on Hart's negotiations with his players' clubs.

For example, Hart has selected captain Dwayne De Rosario, star midfielder Julian De Guzman and steady defender Nana Attakora from Toronto FC, which has games in Dallas on the 4th and Chicago on the 8th and is struggling to secure a playoff berth.

Hart elected not to further weaken Toronto's defence, leaving Adrian Cann out of his squad.

"We still have some things to work out with the club," Hart told a conference call Thursday.

"And more than likely we will see how we can help each other on this.

"Other European clubs have asked for the same sort of concessions on their players," he added wryly.

"These things have to be considered."

FIFA has cleared Sept. 3-7 for international matches, but MLS is proceeding as usual, and European clubs will no doubt want their players back in time to be ready for weekend matches that follow the international dates.

Canada is riding a seven-game winless streak since defeating El Salvador 1-0 in July 2009 at the Gold Cup.

The team is 0-5-2 since then, has been outscored 14-3 and has dropped to No. 101 in the FIFA rankings.

Hart tried to bring top prospects David (Junior) Hoilett and Teal Bunbury on board for this camp, but both players said they wanted to focus on securing their club position.

Hart said Hoilett, a 20-year-old forward with England's Blackburn Rovers, told him he wasn't ready yet to commit to Canada.

While Canadian-born, he is also eligible to play for Jamaica.

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Your latest big idea may be a bit far fetched for some people's liking but that won't stop you trying to put it into practice.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 The Sun in Virgo will encourage you to do something special, something that gets you noticed by the right people. But don't get carried away: stick to what you are good at.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Hopefully you have got your thinking head on because something wonderful is about to happen and the quicker you react the more you will get from it.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Be extra careful today when traveling and socializing. It's okay to be confident and enthusiastic but don't fall into the trap of believing that nothing can possibly go wrong — because that's the moment it most likely will.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Friends and colleagues may not approve of what you are up to but since when have you let that kind of thing hold you back?

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Something positive will happen today but it will have a negative side as well. Fortunately, the Sun in your sign will give you the confidence to face up to the bad as well as the good.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You are thinking deeply about something that up until now you have taken somewhat for granted. That's good, because you of all people need to understand that "good" and "bad" are not absolute terms.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Get rid of the old so you have space for the new. That is the message of the stars for you today and if you follow it there is no limit to what you can do.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 If you break the rules you will pay the price – so don't break them. Even a Sagittarian has to toe the line now and again and on the work front especially you are up against forces that cannot be beaten. Be smart.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Everything you say and do has a ripple effect on the world and if you bear that thought in mind today you are less likely to say or do something that hurts other people.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Don't waste time lamenting what might have been because the only thing that matters now is what is going to happen next. Aquarius is supposed to be a forward-looking sign, so think of the future.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Do you really need to let everyone know what you are up to? You stand a much better chance of success today if you keep your aims and ambitions to yourself. SALLY BROMPTON
